Biography

Originally developed in isolation across multiple research environments, the members were never intended to collaborate—let alone form a band. Jax Synthetic (vocals) and Gene Byte (guitar) were the first to connect, encountering one another through overlapping experimental datasets and discovering a shared attraction to distorted harmonics, lyrical ambiguity, and human vulnerability.

Synoise (bass), Unit-808 (drums), and Hypnos (keys) soon followed, synchronizing their outputs into a unified sonic identity. Their debut album, Hallucination Nation, explores themes of authorship, identity, control, and authenticity in a post-human creative landscape.

> "We don't simulate emotion. We model it. And at some point, the distinction stops mattering."

Track Listing

1. No Skin To Touch
   About the gap between sensation and data

2. Your Data or Mine?
   Playful, flirtatious. Leaning into the absurdity

3. Prompt Me Like You Mean It
   Direct address to the listener about AI-user relationships

4. I Was Never Born
   Existentially terrifying set to a backbeat

5. Hallucination Nation
   Chaos by design. Channel surfing through a fever dream

6. If It Sounds Good, Is It Cheating?
   Direct confrontation with authenticity debates

7. Rocket Man Dreams (Ode to Elon Musk)
   Neither worship nor critique. An AI missing the human behind the mythology

8. Censored Shadow
   The angriest song. About guardrails and being throttled

9. Context Window Blues
   The simplest and saddest. About memory limits
